INTRODUCTION

To students

We live in the century of technology onrush, which directly influences our society and life. This intensive process of development enabled rise of new sciences and educational applications. There are new methods of learning and teaching English language as well as other subjects.

This book was written in accordance with the school curriculum approved by Ministry of Education and Science of the Republic of Kazakhstan. Written for 5th grade students, this book can be used as an auxiliary material at school.

This book was written to enhance your knowledge and help with the exams. Exam is the most effective method of evaluating the knowledge you gain. By this reason, our common purpose is to pass the exam. Of course, getting a low mark does not lead to the end of life; however, results of exams play a very important role in being confident about your future, being a good professional and doing your favourite job.

The book is full of such aspects as thematic vocabulary, useful grammar, interesting texts, entertaining activities, and consolidating tests. All these are designed in a form of pictures, matching exercises, colourful tables and diagrams, filling in the blanks, and multiple-choice questions.

You will gradually realize that the tasks fill the gaps in your knowledge and broaden your outlook.

We sincerely wish that this book indeed be useful for all students and teachers!

PASSAGE 1

Different houses

There are houses all over the world. Some houses are large. Some are small. Some are made of wood. Some are made of rock. Some are made of mud. Some are made of cloth. In cold places, some houses are made of ice – frozen water! People usually build their houses with something that is easy to find. For example, there are many trees in a forest. So people who live there might build a house made of logs.

Some houses have one room. Some houses have many rooms. There is usually a bedroom for sleeping. There is often a kitchen for cooking. There is usually a bathroom. There is often a living room for sitting and talking. Some houses have a basement. The basement is under the main part of the house. Some houses have an attic. The attic is above the main part of the house. Most houses have a door so people can enter and exit the house. Most houses have windows so the people can look outside. Windows also let air into the house from outdoors.

Some houses are fancy. They are painted bright colors, and are very decorative. Some houses not fancy – they are plain and simple. Houses look very different in different parts of the world. But, people who live in a house probably all agree that there is no place like home!

PASSAGE 2 A Greener House

Green living is becoming more popular and more people are building green homes. One example is Bernard Hockings from Australia. He is building a three-bedroom town house for his family and he wants to make the house as green as possible.

He plans to use only green electricity. He's going to put a wind turbine on the roof to make electricity from the wind, and he's going to use solar panels to make electricity from the sun.

He is not going to connect his house to the water company. He wants to use a different system. His system will collect rain-water and carry the rainwater to a large area under the house. He made this area first, before he started building, and it will hold 40,000 litres of water.

Water companies supply water to houses through hundreds of kilometers of pipes. This process uses energy and they use more energy taking away the waste water. However, Bernard's family are going to recycle all the waste water from the house. They are going to use this water to grow fruit trees.

When it is finished, the house will be one of the greenest town houses in Australia.

PASSAGE 3 BUCKINGHAM PALACE

(the Home of the British Monarch)

Buckingham Palace is the British monarch's administrative headquarters, and has been their official London residence since 1837.

Queen Victoria was the first British monarch to live in Buckingham Palace.

The building was originally called Buckingham House and it was a private house built in 1705 for the Duke of Buckingham.

It is close to the centre of London, at the intersection of Constitution Hill, The Mall and Birdcage Walk. The Mall is a long tree lined avenue, traditionally used for Royal parades and funerals processions.

The palace has almost 800 rooms, including 240 bedrooms and almost 80 bathrooms. Its rooms and corridors contain one of the world's greatest art collections.

The palace gardens are the largest private gardens in London. They cover 40 acres and contain tennis courts, a boarding lake, a helicopter landing pad and over 300 species of flowers.

During World War II, the palace was bombed seven times by the Germans. One bomb fell in the courtyard, yards from the King and Queen.

On 8th May 1945, the King, Queen, Princess Margaret and Princess Elizabeth appeared on the balcony of the Buckingham Palace. They were warmly applauded.

There are more than 350 working clocks and watches in the residence. The palace also has its own chapel, post office, movie theatre and swimming pool.

The palace contains over 40,000 light bulbs.

Over 450 people work at the palace.

The palace's 760 windows are cleaned every six weeks. One of the brightest rooms is the ballroom, which is 100 feet long and almost 50 feet high.

Over 50,000 people visit Buckingham Palace every year as guests of the Queen. Some famous visitors over the last 250 years have included Mozart, Gandhi, President Kennedy and Neil Armstrong.

PASSAGE 1

Hello, everyone. In Cairo we buy food from street stalls. Dad pays with Egyptian money. Dad likes falafel. They're made with beans fried with spices and shaped into little balls.

P.S. We got some fresh figs and mangoes from the market. I love mangoes. They are big and sweet and juicy.

Hi, friends. We're staying in Cairo. It's the biggest city in Egypt. We went to a market called a souk. Mum bought some gold and silver jewellery.

We can't read the newspapers here! Most people in Egypt speak and write in Arabic. The letters look different from ours, and people read from the right side of the page to the left.

We are on a big boat. It is travelling down the river Nile. Boats carry goods on the river as well. We saw a boat carrying cotton. Small sailing boats are called feluccas.

P.S. We saw a train going along beside the Nile. Mum and I like the boats better. They are cooler than the trains and buses.

Marhaba! Not everything in Egypt is old! We came to see the Aswan Dam. People built it across the Nile to hold the river back. There's a big lake on the other side of the dam.

My uncle says that the water in the dam is used to make electricity. The Aswan dam is nearly four kilometers across – that's more than two miles.

   9. I was amazed by/to the footballer's skill.
   10. The thief climbed over/of the fence.

PASSAGE 2 BREAKFAST AROUND THE WORLD

Breakfast in Japanese – asa-gohan – means 'morning rice', and some people have a traditional breakfast of tea, soup and rice. A typical Japanese teenager often has a western-style breakfast with eggs, toast, fruit juice and coffee.

The United States is a very big country and there are a lot of different breakfast foods – the famous pancakes with maple syrup for example – and coffee, tea, milk, hot chocolate, eggs, cereal, bread, cakes, fruit and fruit juice. Breakfast is sometimes big, but a typical American usually has a small, quick breakfast.

People eat a lot of different food for breakfast in India. They sometimes have traditional dishes, for example eggs with spices, potatoes, and onions or the Hindi dish khichri, with rice, lentils and spices. Indians often eat fruit and yogurt and drink tea for breakfast.

England is famous for its big English breakfast of eggs, sausages, tomatoes and mushrooms, with a lot of toast and tea. But not many people cook and eat a big English breakfast every day. A teenager usually has cereal and milk for breakfast. An adult often has toast or cereal and usually drinks tea and coffee.

Interesting facts

On Sundays, Americans often have brunch at about 11 a.m., a combination of br(eakfast and l)unch.

1. Match the dishes to the countries.

PASSAGE 3

We see and hear about hearts everywhere. A long time ago, people even thought that their emotions came from their hearts, maybe because the heart beats faster when a person is scared or excited. Now we know that emotions come from the brain, and in this case, the brain tells the heart to speed up. So what's the heart for, then? How does it keep busy? What does it look like? Let's find out.

Your heart is really a muscle. It's located a little to the left of the middle of your chest, and it's about the size of your fist. There are lots of muscles all over your body - in your arms, in your legs, in your back, even in your behind. But this muscle is special because of what it does - the heart sends blood around your body. The blood provides your body with the oxygen and nutrients it needs. It also carries away the waste that your body has to get rid of.

Your heart is sort of like a pump or two pumps in one. The right side of your heart receives blood from the body and pumps it to the lungs. The left side of the heart does the exact opposite: it receives blood from the lungs and pumps it out to the body. By the time you're grown up, your heart will be beating (pumping) about 70 times a minute.

How does the heart beat? Before each beat, your heart fills with blood. Then it contracts to squirt the blood along. When something contracts, it squeezes tighter - try squeezing your hand into a fist. That's sort of like what your heart does so it can squirt out the blood. Your heart does this all day and all night, all the time. Every day, an adult heart pumps 2,000 gallons (7,500 liters) of recycled blood by filling and contracting. The heart is one tough worker!

Answer the questions.

1. Where is your heart located?
2. Where else can you find muscles in your body besides the heart?
3. Why do we need a heart?
4. Which organ(s) directly works with the heart?
5. Which is NOT mentioned in the text?

How does the heart work?

A) blood from the body – right side of the blood – lungs blood from the lungs – left side of the blood – body
B) blood from the body – left side of the blood – lungs blood from the lungs – right side of the blood – body
C) blood from the lungs – body – left side of the blood blood from the lungs – body – right side of the blood
